

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY
GRADUATE PROGRAM HANDBOOK, 2020-21

The Graduate Handbook of the Department of History serves as a guide to our program. The handbook spells out explicitly departmental requirements, procedures, timelines, and other essential information concerning progress toward a doctoral degree or master's degree in history. Students and faculty are expected to be familiar with the contents of this publication. Use of this guide is in addition to consulting with your faculty adviser, the graduate director, and the graduate program coordinator.

The Department of History is governed by an elected chair (a tenured faculty member) who has responsibility for both the undergraduate and graduate programs. The Graduate Committee consists of faculty appointed by the chair to oversee the affairs of the graduate students; the graduate director chairs the committee.

Twice a quarter or as needed, two-three graduate students are designated to represent student issues and concerns to the Graduate Committee.

The Division of Graduate Studies handbook (<http://graddiv.ucsc.edu/current-students/academic-regulations/index.html>) specifies University of California guidelines for graduate students and must be considered as the primary source of information.

FIELDS OF CONCENTRATION

In preparing graduate students for research and teaching at the university level, the department offers training in four geographically defined fields: U.S. history, European history since 1500, East Asian history since 1600, and World history since 1500. U.S., European, and East Asian history are defined as primary fields of concentration; each graduate student is required to choose one. Students of U.S. history may incorporate Latin American history in their course work, while students of European history might include the history of European colonialism and imperialism. Every year the faculty in each field offer introductory readings seminars and, when possible, classes on more specific topics. Each Ph.D. student also prepares a second teaching field different from the primary field and can choose from among U.S., European, East Asian, and World History. Ph.D. students may also petition the Graduate Committee to prepare a second teaching field in African or Latin American history. The graduate director must receive this petition no later than the fourth week of the fall quarter of a student's second year.

1. M.A. students must complete a total of 12 five-unit courses, two two-unit courses, and a substantial M.A. essay an average word count of 8000-10000, excluding footnotes and bibliography; there is no language requirement. For students specializing in Europe, U.S., and East Asia, the curriculum will be nearly identical to that taken by Ph.D. students in their first two years.

Course Requirements

HIS 200, Methods and Theories of History
 HIS 201, Directed Research Colloquium
 HIS 202, Practicing World History

One of the following research seminars during your first four quarters:

- HIS 204A, History of Gender
- HIS 204C, Colonialism, Nationalism, and Race
- HIS 204E, Transnationalism, Borderlands, and History

Two-unit courses:

Two courses (two units each), which must be HIS 280 A-B-C.

Electives:

Six courses (five units each), two of which may be taken outside the History Department. Courses taken are graduate seminars, most upper-division undergraduate courses (no more than 15 units), and independent study courses.

Reading Seminars:

Required of all graduate students in their respective specialties.

U.S.: 210 A-B

Europe: 251 A-B

East Asia: 230A-B-C (China); 242, 243, 244 (Japan)

Until you pass the qualifying exam and are formally advanced to candidacy for the Ph.D. degree, you are expected to complete a minimum of 10 units each quarter (i.e., two five-unit upper-division or graduate level courses) to maintain normal academic progress. Completion of a minimum of 12 five-unit courses (in addition to the HIS 280 series) is required for advancement to candidacy. Courses taken are graduate seminars, most upper-division undergraduate courses, and independent study courses.

During your career, you may enroll in courses at other UC campuses through the Intercampus Exchange Program. For more information, see the Graduate Division's Graduate Handbook (<http://graddiv.ucsc.edu/current-students/academic-regulations/graduate-student-handbook/index.html>) Please note that the intercampus exchange application for UC Berkeley is due in April. The application for other UC campuses has a deadline each quarter (approximately six weeks prior to the beginning of the quarter). Check the Academic and Administrative Calendar (<http://reg.ucsc.edu/calendar>) for exact dates.

The core curriculum for East Asian history consists of three China reading seminars (courses 230A, 230B, 230C) and three Japan reading seminars (courses 242, 243, 244) taught in sequence over three years, covering such topics as foundational historiographies, gender, social movements and transnational circulation of people, commodities and ideas. Over the course of the three years to the qualifying exam, China students will be expected to take all three China seminars and at least two of the three Japan seminars. Japan students will be expected to take all three Japan seminars and at least two of the three China seminars. Additional coursework in research methods as well as occasional independent studies will also be available, and students are encouraged to take classes with a wide range of faculty in other departments across the campus.

Foreign Language Requirement

Students with a primary teaching field in U.S. history are expected to demonstrate a reading competency in at least one foreign language the quarter prior to taking the qualifying exam. Students in all other teaching fields must demonstrate a reading competency in at least two foreign languages prior to taking the qualifying exam; competency in one of the languages must be demonstrated by the end of the sixth quarter of enrollment and the second language exam is due 1 quarter prior to taking the qualifying exam. Usually, competency will be demonstrated by passing a reading exam administered by a member of the History faculty. Students who believe that they have already demonstrated competency through previous course work or through their performance on a standardized test should petition the graduate director. Students may be exempt of a second language, if English is not their primary language. A student must consult with their advisor,

You must satisfy all language requirements before taking the qualifying exam. Submit a completed Report on Language Requirement form (http://graddiv.ucsc.edu/student_affairs/pdf_student_affairs/_interactive/language.pdf) to the graduate coordinator.

Designated Emphasis

Graduate students in history may obtain a designated emphasis on the history Ph.D. diploma indicating that they have specialized in an area. Some of Designated emphasis are available in: Anthropology, Critical Race and Ethnic Studies, Environmental Studies, Feminist Studies, Film and Digital Media, Latin American & Latino Studies, Philosophy, Social Documentation and Visual Studies and Sociology. This is not a complete list. Students must fulfill all of the requirements for the designated emphasis in addition to the History Department requirements. For more information, visit the departmental web sites. The list below is provisional and not limiting.

MASTER'S DEGREE

M.A. Students

The M.A. degree is awarded after two years in residence, provided that the following requirements have been met:

2. Completion of 12 five-unit courses and 2 two-unit Proseminars;
3. Removal of all Incomplete notations on record;
4. Approval of an M.A. essay, an average word count of 8000-10000, excluding footnotes and bibliography.

Ph.D. Students

The M.A. degree is awarded after two years in residence, provided that the following requirements have been met:

1. Completion of 15 five-unit courses and 3 two-unit Proseminars;
2. Completion of the first language requirement (for students in European and East Asian history);
3. Removal of all Incomplete notations on record;
5. Approval of the M.A. essay, an average word count of 8000-10000, excluding footnotes and bibliography.

Exception From Course Work

Ph.D. students who have a master's degree in history from another institution are expected to complete the requirements for the M.A. at UCSC. You may, in consultation with your faculty adviser, request a Fast Track. (A Fast Track is submitting the M.A. award from the other institution, in place of completing an M.A. at UCSC) A Fast Track may make you exempt from taking HIS 201 and remove 1 graduate elective course requirement. This request must be made in the Fall quarter of your first year.

MASTER'S DEGREE ESSAY

Students are required to produce a substantial research essay (average word count of 8000-10000, excluding footnotes and bibliography) grounded in original research in primary historical documents. A successful essay will reflect a general understanding of the field of inquiry along with a critical grasp of the scholarship that currently defines the field; deep knowledge of the specific subject under investigation; the application of appropriate analytical models; and a well-supported interpretation of the materials explored. This essay could (but need not) be a segment of a larger project; but it must be a complete, self-contained essay in and of itself.

Procedure

- ❑ Enroll in course 201, Directed Research Colloquium, the winter quarter of your second year.
- ❑ A completed Application for the Master's Degree (http://graddiv.ucsc.edu/student_affairs/pdf_student_affairs_interactive/app_mas.pdf) must be filed with the graduate coordinator with the submission of your final essay.
- ❑ It is understood that you will work intensively with your reader in the preparation, crafting, and revising of your essay. You must submit your essay to your reader at the end of winter quarter. Your reader must sign off on the title page of the paper as an indication that they have read and approved the paper for submission.
- ❑ The final essay (a hard copy and pdf copy) must be submitted to the graduate program coordinator by the spring quarter deadline. The deadline (the 2nd Thursday of the Spring Qtr.) will be specified in the department's call for M.A. essays.

Essay Review and Evaluation

The Graduate Committee evaluates the master's essays and makes recommendations to the graduate director on the awarding of the M.A. degree.

If the Graduate Committee feels that your essay is not of passing quality, they will solicit comments from the 201 instructor and from your reader. The committee may ask you to revise the essay. If so, they will provide detailed feedback and set a new submission deadline. A new Application for the Master's Degree must be filed with the Graduate Division via the graduate coordinator by the end of the second week of the quarter in which the revision is due.

For Ph.D. students: The Graduate Committee also reviews your overall academic record and makes a recommendation to the graduate director regarding your preparedness to proceed to the qualifying exam. If it is decided that you are not making solid progress in the program, you will be asked to take a terminal master's degree.

You will be notified of the committee's decision in June.

The qualifying exam (QE) emphasizes field mastery, integration of material from different fields, and focused preparation for dissertation research. The QE is a three-hour meeting with your committee during which you will present and discuss the dossier that has been submitted to the committee at least three weeks in advance. The exam is normally taken by the spring quarter of your third year, but no later than the end of the 10th quarter of residency. Prior to taking the QE, all Incomplete grade notations must be cleared from your record. Additionally, you must be a registered graduate student the quarter the exam is taken. You cannot be on in-absentia status during the QE quarter.

The QE committee must consist of at least four examiners. The chair of the committee and the outside member must be tenured faculty. The outside member should be from a different discipline at UCSC or a tenured member of the same or a different discipline from another campus. In the event that the off-department member is untenured, a fifth off-department member who is tenured must be appointed to the exam committee. Your Committee Nomination for Ph.D. Qualifying Examination form (http://graddiv.ucsc.edu/student_affairs/PDF/interactive/qe_qual.pdf) is due to the graduate coordinator at least six weeks prior to your exam. You are responsible for scheduling your exam day and time. If you wish to use one of the History Department conference rooms, contact the graduate program coordinator, morrisc@ucsc.edu to make a reservation. It is also your responsibility to notify the committee and the department regarding any scheduling changes or postponement of the exam.

The four exam fields are designed in consultation with your QE committee members. You will prepare for the exam through regularly offered courses and independent readings courses sponsored by your examiners. You are required to take at least two courses in each of the four fields. The fields are as follows:

- ❑ Primary Field of Concentration. One of three fields: American history; European history 1500 to the present; East Asian history 1600 to the present.
- ❑ Research Field. Normally a subfield of the primary field with a focus on your specific area of research interests.
- ❑ Second Teaching Field. Chosen from the above list of primary fields, with the addition of World history, or, where appropriate, a comparative, thematic field such as gender, colonialism, etc. Ph.D. students may also petition the Graduate Committee to prepare a second teaching field in African or Latin American history. The graduate director must receive this petition no later than the fourth week of the fall quarter of a student's second year. Note: Students who wish to complete World history as a teaching field as part of their QE must serve as a TA in a lower-division World history course to supplement their training.
- ❑ Outside Field. A field outside history, such as anthropology, literature, feminist studies, politics, sociology, or history of consciousness. You will select a field of topical, thematic, or methodological relevance to your dissertation. Your faculty adviser must approve the outside field.

The four exam fields must be defined and preliminary reading lists (see below) filed with the department no later than your eighth quarter of residency.

A pass or fail will be given after the exam based on your knowledge and research preparation as demonstrated by your dossier. All areas must receive passing marks from all members of the committee. Immediately following the exam, the QE committee will complete and submit to the History Department the Report on Qualifying Examination form. If you do not pass the QE the first time, you may retake only those sections not passed. No one will be permitted to take the QE more than twice. Once you pass the exam, you must provide the advancement to candidacy fee of $90 (posted to your student billing account) and the Nomination for Dissertation Reading Committee form.

Qualifying Exam Dossier Requirements

The QE dossier includes four parts, each of which should be prepared in consultation with your primary academic adviser and with the advice of the examiners. The exam will focus upon the dossier. All examiners, including the examiner from outside the department, will participate in all segments of the exam.

The dossier includes:

1. An essay (15-20 pages) reviewing the state of the scholarship in your primary field of concentration. This essay should reflect your general, broad competence in your field as well as a mastery of the theoretical issues and historiographic debates in four to five areas that represent your primary area of expertise. The essay may reflect the thematic focus of your chosen research cluster as well as work completed in an outside field (literature, anthropology, etc.).
2. One or, at most, two syllabi (the number to be decided in discussion with your primary adviser) that demonstrates your preparation to teach across the breadth of your primary field at the introductory level. The syllabus should be annotated to show how each class session would be prepared: principal sources for lectures, principal questions for discussion, reasons for assigning particular readings, etc.
3. A syllabus (annotated in the same fashion as described in section #2 above) in your second teaching field, accompanied by a brief (three- to five-page) statement of principal issues. The exact content of these items will be decided in consultation with the examiner in the secondary teaching field.
4. A 10-15 page research prospectus that includes an evaluative survey of the literature relevant to your proposed research topic, a detailed discussion of the archival resources, and a consideration of the theoretical issues to be engaged.

NOTE:

- Although no specific segment of the dossier focuses upon the course work completed outside the History Department, it is expected that this work will be incorporated into different sections of the portfolio, particularly the research prospectus.
- Complete bibliographies must be appended to each piece of the QE dossier.

Advancement to Candidacy

In order to officially advance to candidacy, students must meet the following requirements:

- Satisfactory completion of all language requirements
- Pass the qualifying exam
- Submit the Nominations for Dissertation Reading Committee form
- Pay the $90 advancement to candidacy fee through your online student billing account
- Clear all Incomplete notations on record

Advancement to candidacy becomes effective the quarter following the submission of the Nomination for Dissertation Reading Committee form and payment of the fee. You must be registered the quarter following your advancement to candidacy. At this time, international students will be eligible for a quarterly reduction in tuition for up to three consecutive years. Students who go on leave do not lose their eligibility. For example, a student who takes a leave for two years after advancing will have one year left when they return.

The dissertation represents an extensive, book-length project grounded in research in original historical documents. You are expected to seek funding to travel to the necessary archives. A successful dissertation will reflect a broad and deep understanding of the field of inquiry, a mastery of the scholarship that currently defines the field, detailed knowledge of the subject of study growing out of dedicated research, and the incorporation (and explicit rejection of) appropriate interpretive models.

Prospectus

The dissertation prospectus lays out in reasonable detail the direction of research you intend to pursue for the dissertation. The prospectus includes the following information:

- ✓ Title page with signatory lines for the dissertation committee members and the graduate director
- ✓ Three- to four-page description of the overall argument of the project, including a discussion of the research base and the appropriate methodological/theoretical models
- ✓ Two- to three-page outline, tracking the research and analysis chapter by chapter
- ✓ Substantive bibliography with complete citations

Dissertation fellowship decisions, at the departmental and university level as well as from outside sources, are dependent upon a successful dissertation prospectus.

Degree Application/Filing Fee Status

You must be registered or on Filing Fee Status during the quarter the degree is to be conferred. The filing fee may only be used for one quarter and entails a substantially reduced fee, but entitles you to file a dissertation. Use of the filing fee is reserved for students who were enrolled or on approved leave the preceding quarter. There will be no further campus privileges, i.e., library, laboratory facilities, faculty time or financial support. Therefore, the dissertation should be essentially complete before applying for Filing Fee Status. Students are expected to use the filing fee only once.

By the end of the first week of the quarter, an Application for Doctor of Philosophy Degree form (http://graddiv.ucsc.edu/student_affairs/pdf_student_affairs/interactive/app_phd.pdf), which requires dissertation adviser(s) and graduate director signatures, must be filed with the Graduate Division. If you intend to use the filing fee, you must submit a complete draft of your dissertation to your Dissertation Committee and all member must confirm the dissertation is complete other than minor revisions. The Application for Filing Fee Status: http://graddiv.ucsc.edu/student_affairs/pdf_student_affairs/interactive/filestat.pdf the fee itself ($188 for 2018-19). The graduate director will not sign off on the filing fee application without confirmation from the Dissertation Committee that a complete draft was submitted and only minor revision are needed.

Dissertation Completion

The dissertation should be submitted to the dissertation reading committee before the end of the fifth week of the quarter in which the degree is to be conferred. As a courtesy to the committee, students should provide a hard copy draft unless the committee is willing to accept an electronic copy.

All students should read through the Dissertation and Thesis Preparation Guidelines (http://graddiv.ucsc.edu/student_affairs/guidelines_files/v3_document.htm) and complete a format check with the Graduate Division before submitting the final draft. Contact Veronica Larkin at vlarkin@ucsc.edu for an appointment.

A copy of the signed title page along with a PDF of the dissertation must be filed with Graduate Program Coordinator and one copy must be filed online with the Graduate Division by the deadline in the quarter in which the degree is to be conferred (see Academic and Administrative Calendar at <http://reg.ucsc.edu/calendar>).

Academic Advising

You are assigned a faculty adviser whose field of expertise most closely matches your research interests. Together you and your adviser devise a plan of study that will enable you to develop mastery within in your area of concentration. Meet with your faculty adviser at least once a quarter to review your academic progress and other topics on the faculty adviser checklists (see Appendix for requirements and adviser checklists).

Please note that your faculty adviser may not be available for advising or individual study during a sabbatical. If your adviser is planning to work with you during this time, discuss meeting schedules (if needed) and keeping in touch. You may also wish to discuss who might have signature authority in their absence. If your adviser is not going to be available to you, they should make arrangements with another faculty member to work with you.

If you wish to change faculty advisers, you must complete a Faculty Adviser Change Request form (available from the graduate coordinator), obtain signatures from your current and new advisers, and submit the completed form to the graduate director for departmental approval.

Evaluation of Academic Progress

Each spring, the History Department reviews the academic progress of all continuing students. All first year students are required to meet with the Graduate Committee to discuss academic goals and progress.

Time to Degree

During your time in the graduate program, you will become familiar with the terms "normative time" or "timely progress." It is important to progress within expected timetables as it affects many aspects of financial support as well as good academic standing.

(See the Graduate Division Graduate Student Handbook)

<https://graddiv.ucsc.edu/current-students/academic-regulations/graduate-student-handbook/section-nine.html> - 11

To maintain satisfactory academic progress and eligibility for fellowships and other benefits, you must

- Complete a minimum of 10 units per quarter during the first three years, or until the qualifying exam is passed;
- Complete and pass the master's essay requirement by the end of the second year;
- Complete the language exam requirements, the first by the end of the second year; the second exam (if applicable) before the qualifying exam;
- Pass the qualifying exam by the end of the third year;
- Submit the dissertation reading committee form and fee of $90 in order to advance to candidacy following the completion of the qualifying exam, but no later than the end of the 9th quarter of residence;
- Complete the dissertation by the end of the six/seventh year.

Beyond Time To Degree

If you remain in the program past normative time, you will be required to submit the following at the beginning of each academic year:

- Dissertation progress to date;
- Detailed timetable for completion;
- Letter of support from your faculty adviser
- All must be submitted to the Graduate Program Coordinator

Academic Probation and Dismissal from the Program

Students with two Incompletes notations may be placed on academic probation by the department. If all Incompletes are removed within three quarters (or by an earlier date specified by the instructor or department), the academic probation will be lifted. Students who allow their Incompletes to lapse into Unsatisfactory notations are subject to dismissal by the History Department.

Academic probation is not permanently noted on your record and is viewed very seriously. One consequence is that students on probation are not eligible for merit fellowship support and receive lower priority for academic appointments, e.g., TAs, GSRships, etc.

The by-laws of the Academic Senate state “a graduate student may be dismissed or placed on probation for poor academic performance by the dean of Graduate Studies, upon recommendation of the department.”

All second-year students must submit a substantial research essay to the Graduate Committee, even if they already have an M.A. in history from another institution. Failure to satisfactorily pass the essay in conjunction with a poor performance record is grounds for dismissal.

Students who fail the qualifying exam twice will be dismissed from the program.

Intradepartmental Academic Grievance Procedure

If you are dissatisfied with your progress in the program or believe that individual faculty or the department as a whole has treated you unfairly, you are urged to meet with the graduate coordinator or graduate director as soon as possible. If the problem is not resolved to your satisfaction, you may submit a letter of grievance to the Graduate Committee. If you remain dissatisfied with departmental action, you may report your concerns to the department chair. If you believe that the department cannot or will not resolve the problem to your satisfaction, then you may turn to the Graduate Division for assistance.

REGISTRATION AND ENROLLMENT

Minimum and Maximum Credit Limits

Students who are not advanced to candidacy must enroll in a minimum of 10 units (two five-unit upper-division or graduate level) each quarter. Students may enroll in up to 19 credits before instruction begins. If students wish to enroll in more than 19 credits, approval from the faculty adviser is required.

Students who are advanced to candidacy enroll in just one upper-division or graduate level five-unit course (usually HIS 299A, Thesis Research). The call number for HIS 299A is e-mailed each quarter to all ABD students during priority enrollment.

Two-Unit Courses

Students are required to take HIS 280 A-B-C.

280A. History Graduate Proseminar: Teaching Pedagogy

280B. History Graduate Proseminar: Research Presentations and Grant Writing

280C. History Graduate Proseminar: Job Market

Graduate Independent Study Course

If you are interested in taking an independent study in history, you must find a faculty member who is willing to supervise the course. The History Department does not require any paperwork or signatures at this time. Contact the graduate coordinator for a class number for independent study. When requesting a class number, include name of instructor, type of independent study, and number of units. Only two independent studies will count as required graduate courses.

Graduate Student Enrollment Exceptions

You are responsible for checking your enrollment each quarter. If you find that you have enrolled in the wrong course, forgotten to add a course or wish to swap a course, you must make the correction before the Add/Drop/Swap deadline (see Academic and Administrative Calendar at <http://reg.ucsc.edu/calendar/>). If you miss the Add/Drop/Swap deadline, requests for enrollment exceptions must be submitted to the graduate coordinator. Exceptions are intended for special circumstances only. Excuses such as forgetting to enroll will not be considered.

Procedures

After the Add/Drop/Swap deadline but before the Add By Petition deadline:

- Submit an Add By Petition form to add a class (forms available at the Registrar's Office, $10 fee).
- To drop a class, e-mail the graduate coordinator at morrisc@ucsc.edu with the class information (i.e., class number, title, instructor, quarter/year), the reason for dropping the course, and why you missed the deadline.
- The graduate coordinator will confirm that you will still be enrolled in the minimum required units after dropping the class.
- If your request is approved, the graduate coordinator will contact the Registrar's Office to request an exception on your behalf.
- The Registrar's Office will process the enrollment transaction in AIS.
- You will be assessed a $10 late enrollment fee.

After the Add By Petition deadline but before the last day of the quarter:

- Graduate students must contact the graduate coordinator regarding any enrollment issues.
- The graduate coordinator determines whether to request an enrollment exception.
- Written support from the instructor will be required if the graduate coordinator proceeds with the request.
- The graduate coordinator will confirm that you will still be enrolled in a minimum number of units after the enrollment adjustment.
- If the department supports the request and has written support from the instructor, the graduate coordinator will submit a request to the Registrar's Office.
- The Registrar's Office will process the enrollment transaction in AIS.
- You will be assessed a $10 late enrollment fee.

After the close of the quarter:

Changes to enrollments after the end of the quarter require approval through the dean of Graduate Studies. The process is the same as above, except that the request for enrollment exception will be submitted to the Graduate Division.

Residency Requirements for Nonresident Students

Information regarding residency requirements for tuition purposes is available on the Office of the Registrar's web site at <http://reg.ucsc.edu/students/residency.htm>.

Consult the Graduate Division's Graduate Handbook (<http://graddiv.ucsc.edu/current-students/academic-regulations/index.html>) for information regarding Leave of Absence, Part-time Enrollment, and In-Absentia Status.

SUPPORT FUNDING

History Ph.D. students normally are supported through teaching assistantships. Students who are advanced to candidacy are eligible to teach Summer Session courses and/or a one-quarter teaching fellowship (pending funding). Some fellowships are available to first-year and advanced students through university wide competition. Additionally, the department offers a limited number of small fellowships for research and travel.

The History Department does not normally provide financial support to its M.A. students; however, you may apply for available teaching assistantships.

Department Fellowships

Each year the History Department invites its Ph.D. students to apply for summer research fellowships and dissertation research and writing fellowships (pending funding). The call for applications is issued around mid-April. Students must be currently enrolled and in good academic standing.

Travel Grants

The History Department offers small travel grants (pending funding) during the academic year to provide assistance to students who must travel to archives or professional conferences, if presenting. Funding will be approved for transportation, conference registration, and/or lodging only; meals will not be reimbursed. You may only apply once per academic calendar year (July 1- June 30) and applications are available by request from graduate program coordinator. Applications must be submitted at least two weeks prior to travel.

The Humanities Institute (<http://ihr.ucsc.edu/>) maintains a pool of resources to fund graduate student travel. Deadlines for applications are set each quarter.

Limited funds are available through the Committee on Research (COR) for the purpose of encouraging cooperative use of the library (including the Huntington Library) resources, research facilities, and field stations of the University. Graduate students who require access to facilities at other University campuses for their dissertation research are eligible and will be supported as funds permit. For application procedures, go to <https://senate.ucsc.edu/committees/cor-committee-on-research/grant-applications/smt-application-info.html>(Scholarly Meeting Travel Guidelines > Intercampus Research Travel).

Outside Fellowship Support

Each fall the Humanities research coordinator provides lists of graduate grants for history students. All students are strongly encouraged to apply for outside fellowships in the area of study in which they are working. Students can prepare for this by taking HIS 280B, History Graduate Proseminar: Research Presentations and Grant Writing.

For more information about financial support, see the Graduate Division's web site, <http://graddiv.ucsc.edu/aid>.

GRADUATE STUDENT EMPLOYMENT

Graduate Student Researchships (GSR)

GSRships are appointments funded by grants involving the student in research under the direction of a ladder-rank faculty member or Principal Investigator. Faculty contact students directly when positions are available.

TEACHING APPOINTMENTS

There are two different types of teaching appointments in the History Department that graduate students may hold. The most common appointment is a teaching assistantship (all full-time graduate students are eligible) in which the graduate student works under the supervision of the instructor of record and leads discussion sections independently. The second is a graduate student instructor appointment where a course is taught independent of supervision. Teaching assistants and teaching fellows receive a monthly stipend and a fee reduction.

Graduate Student Instructor Appointment

Graduate student instructor (GSI) positions allow graduate students to further their pedagogical skills through participation in course instruction as part of their training. The call for these appointments and application instructions are issued during the fall quarter of each year. To be eligible, a student must be advanced to candidacy, within normative time, in good standing, have at least two years (or the equivalent) of college teaching experience (as an instructor or teaching assistant), and very good or better teaching evaluations.

Summer Session Teaching Fellow Appointment

Graduate students who are advanced to candidacy may apply to teach Summer Session. The Summer Session Office selects courses on the basis of undergraduate curricular needs. The call is issued from the History Department Office, and the submission deadline is usually around November 1.

Teaching Assistantship

Department policy is to prepare and hire history graduate students to teach a history course under the supervision of a faculty member. Teaching assistantships are awarded annually in late June-early July for the following academic year. After that date any changes in assignment are made in consultation with the Graduate Director, graduate program coordinator and instructor.

History Department graduate students who have been appointed to history courses are guaranteed a TAship. However, changes in undergraduate enrollment may necessitate the reassignment of a TAship, even after the first week of the quarter. In making last minute changes, every effort is made to minimize inconvenience to teaching assistants and faculty alike. If a change has to be made, teaching assistants will be notified in writing.

Should a graduate student wish to resign from a TAship, the department and course instructor must be notified in writing immediately.

Application and Assignment Procedure

- ❑ All eligible students will receive on e-mail the call for TA applications in mid Spring quarter. The call includes a list of available TAships, application procedures, a preference sheet, and an application form. You may select courses from the list for which you feel qualified to act as a TA and want to TA for that course. You may be selected as a TA for any courses.

Note: Incoming graduate students who are guaranteed TAships in their first year are assigned to positions. They will have an opportunity to apply for TAships for their second year.

- ❑ Once TA assignments are done and crosschecked with the Graduate Division, they are forwarded to Humanities Division for the dean's approval. The dean holds the final authority for approving and providing an appointment letter. Students should not assume that any offer of employment from faculty or a department constitutes a formal offer.
- ❑ Students must reply to the offer by the deadline specified on the appointment letter. Failure to do so may result in delayed pay or loss of the position. As a courtesy to the department, students who decline history TA appointment offers are asked to notify the department immediately.

Fifty Percent Time Limitation Policy

<https://graddiv.ucsc.edu/current-students/academic-regulations/graduate-student-handbook/section-eight.html#five>

During academic sessions, graduate students may not be employed in any capacity by the University beyond the maximum of 50 percent service time. The purpose of the university wide policy is to limit the amount of time graduate student spend on University activities that do not lead directly to the successful completion of their academic programs. Exceptions are very rarely granted; experience has shown that service obligations in excess of 20 hours per week, on average, almost always have an adverse effect on a student's academic progress. Also, graduate students employed more than 50 percent time cannot be counted as full-time students for budgetary purposes.

Four-Year Rule

<https://graddiv.ucsc.edu/current-students/academic-regulations/graduate-student-handbook/section-eight.html> - five

Although graduate students often rely upon teaching assignments both in History and other departments/colleges for support, no more than 12 quarters combined of the different types of teaching appointments (i.e., reader on annual stipend, teaching assistant, teaching fellow, associate) can be held without special permission from the graduate director and the graduate dean. These exceptions are often approved; however, no graduate student will be allowed to hold over 18 quarters of teaching appointments. There are no exceptions to this system wide rule.

TA Training

<https://graddiv.ucsc.edu/current-students/academic-regulations/graduate-student-handbook/section-eight.html> - five

The History Department offers a TA training course for all students new to TA appointments. HIS 280A, History Graduate Proseminar: Teaching Pedagogy, is devoted to the professionalization and socialization of history graduate students. Topics include TAships, designing course syllabi, pedagogy, teaching technologies and teaching in different venues. This course is mandatory for all new students, even those supported by a fellowship in their first year.

TA Office Space

Two workstations in Humanities 1, suite 115, are available for History TA office hours. A sign-up sheet is posted at each workstation. See the academic coordinator to check out a key.

Enrollment Caps for Lecture Courses with TAs

The History Department has established the following ratios for lecture courses with TAs:

- Enrollment cap at 60/75 = 1 TA
- Enrollment cap at 120/150 = 2 TAs
- Enrollment cap at 180/225 = 3 TAs
- Enrollment cap at 240/300 = 4 TAs

The faculty are well aware that a TA's workload cannot exceed 220 hours per quarter. They will informally monitor TA workload on a regular basis and make any necessary adjustments to stay within the 220 hours.

DEPARTMENT INFORMATION

Business Cards

If you are advanced to candidacy, you may request University business cards through the History Department. The department will provide the first order of 250 cards in English only; future orders will be charged to you. Please allow at least two weeks for processing and delivery. Contact the academic coordinator at morrisc@ucsc.edu to initiate an order.

Computer Help

Contact Information Technology Services (ITS) Help Desk in the following ways:

- Online: itrequest.ucsc.edu
- By phone: 459-HELP (4357)
- By e-mail: help@ucsc.edu

Dossier Service

The History Department offers a dossier service free of charge to all history graduate and Ph.D. students. The purpose of the dossier service is to serve as an official repository for documents supporting an application for academic employment. It is important for individuals to establish a file before beginning their job search. For more information, go to <http://history.ucsc.edu/graduate/phd-program/dossier-service.html>. This service may also be used as a repository for documents supporting fellowship applications.

E-mail Address

The department sends e-mail to UCSC accounts only. You can activate your UCSC account through your student portal. You are encouraged to check your UCSC account at least once a day. If you wish to have your e-mail forwarded to a personal account, go to https://ucsc.service-now.com/kb_view.do?syparm_article=KB0015986. Please be sure that your personal account is active.

Graduate Space and Computing

The graduate computer lab, Humanities and Social Science 150, is equipped with computers, a copier, individual mailboxes, lockers, and bookshelves. All lab users are responsible for keeping this facility clean and orderly. The bookshelves provided are to be cleared quarterly; they're not to be used for long-term storage of personal books.

Please remember that the lab is shared graduate student workspace. Refrain from holding office hours, make up exams or meetings in this room. Contact the academic coordinator at history@ucsc.edu to reserve one of the department's meeting rooms for make up exams or meetings; sign up to use History space in Humanities 1, room 115, for TA office hours. See the academic coordinator to check out a key for room 115.

The Copier maintained by campus Copier Program. Instructions are posted on the wall above the copier and additional instructions are available next to the copier in a folder.

The History Department provides each registered graduate student 750 copies (prints/black & white) per quarter. The graduate coordinator will verify with the Copier Program student access each quarter and renew the 750 copies allocation.

Inform the graduate coordinator if there are long standing problems with equipment, software or furniture.

If you are going to be away from campus for one or more quarters:

- Make arrangements to store your books, files, and personal items elsewhere. Any items left in the lab for an extended period of time may be removed, i.e., thrown out, recycled or donated.
- Make arrangements with one of your colleagues to handle your mail. Do not expect the department staff to forward mail.
- Sign up for direct deposit if you are expecting checks.
- Return your keys to the department if you are going on leave.

Key Policy

You may receive a key to the Humanities Building. Keys must be returned to the department upon recall (e.g., if you take a leave of absence, withdraw from the program, or graduate). The replacement charge is $100 per key. Most secured space within the Humanities 1/Humanities & Social Science Building is accessed by an Omni code. A personal omni code is provided to all incoming graduate students in their first quarter and remains effective while in active student status.

Letter of Introduction

If you are conducting research abroad, you are strongly advised to carry a letter of introduction. The letter is printed on University letterhead and signed by the graduate director. Requests for a letter of introduction must be made well in advance of the departure date. Contact the graduate coordinator at morrisc@ucsc.edu.

Mailboxes

Students are provided mailboxes in the graduate student lab, Humanities and Social Sciences 150. Mail is distributed daily. Note: Campus mail services are reserved for official University business only. Personal mail and non-UCSC bills are not considered official business and should not be sent to the department. You must obtain a post office box if you do not receive personal mail at home.

If you are away from campus during the summer or for extended periods during the academic year, make arrangements with one of your colleagues to handle your mail. Do not expect the department staff to forward mail.

Meeting Space

The department's meeting rooms may be reserved for graduate student meetings, qualifying exams, etc. Contact the academic coordinator for availability and to make a reservation. Please note that these rooms are only available during business hours.
